(b) Deployment chart is given as Annexure, [See Appendix CLXIX, Annexure No. 5].

(c) Accounting system introduced in Super Bazar does not facilitate to have branch wise/Department wise/Regional Distribution Centre wise profitability. Super Bazar is maintaining value wise stock and not quantity wise as it is dealing in thousands of items of different departments some of which are centralised and some decentralised. Purchases are centralised and made at Head Office which supplies are made at Regional Distribution Centre (R.D.C.). Mobile vans/Mini branches are attached to a RDC and they draw the goods from R.D.C. and deposit the sale proceeds alongwith their statement and copies Cash Memo to the R.D.C. Reconciliation of accounts is done on yearly basis to arrive at excess or shortages, if any. This procedure does not facilitate to have quantity wise/area wise and item wise value of goods sold.

However Super Bazar has reported that in order to have a better management control, steps are being taken to introduce computerisation and decentralisation of accounts.

(d) No, Sir.

(e) Question does not arise.
